microcosm publishing

*Growing Your Small World &
Building the Bicycle Revolution
since 1996*

A small, charming, and innovative publishing house, Microcosm Publishing specializes in work designed to make the reader feel good about being alive, take an active role in bettering their life, and impact the world around them. Microcosm has developed a reputation for teaching self-empowerment, showing hidden histories, and fostering creativity through challenging conventional publishing wisdom, influencing other publishers large and small with books and booklettes about DIY skills, food, zines, and art. As a commitment to our ethics, our books are printed by union workers in the U.S. and we are moving towards all production using post-consumer papers, with vegan inks and bindings. Further, twice as many of our books are by women as the national average!

Some titles are sold on a sliding scale. Like a museum, pay what you can afford and what it's worth to you within that scale. If it says $3-5 that means you can choose to pay anywhere between $3 and $5.

Our catalog is distributed by people like you. We can send you a free stack to leave in local stores, coffeeshops, or clubs. This is vital to our distribution structure and if you could help, it would be much appreciated.

You may wholesale at a 40% discount off the median price. A minimum wholesale order is $40 and two of each. Our website has a nifty feature to calculate wholesale orders.

Our books are distributed by Publisher's Group West (PGW).

A David and goliath story, On The Books is the first-hand comic strip account of the labor struggle at NYC's legendary Strand bookstore in the summer of 2012. Told by Greg Farrell—an employee of the store who interviewed numerous other members of the staff—the book examines the motives and actions of those involved, including the store, the staff, the union local, and the people of New York City, as understood by the author. Through interstitial comic portraits, Farrell gives voice to his comrades, who share a nuance of the story that would have otherwise gone overlooked, and provide a depth of opinion and fairness to accompany Farrell's personal interpretation of events. In ten short chapters, the book explores at once the current state of the book trade, the inner workings of our national retail environment, the struggle to exist within it as a young working person, and what happens when that no longer seems possible.

Kaycee Eckhardt shares her harrowing and hopeful journey of becoming an effective teacher, and building a new school, in Post-Katrina New Orleans. Beginning as a first year teacher, six weeks out of training, the book follows her from the New Orleans neighborhoods of Holly grove, Algiers, Treme, and the 9th Ward to improving her English students by an average of 3.5+ years in reading levels each year. She details four different schools, a destroyed bicycle, a half dead pit bull, a burlesque-dancer, spit and a concussion, broken light bulbs, a phonics lesson, and planting the seeds of literacy in the most dire of circumstances. With affection and brutal honesty, she relates the hilarity and tragedy of several children, the belief in all things possible, and finally, the most difficult decision of all. Filled with heartbreak stories, teacher survival strategies, and an excess of heart, Katrina's Sandcastles is a story of sacrifice and struggle, belief and failure, despair and ultimate redemption in the heart of the Crescent City.

The Dwelling Portably series returns with Holly and Bert's newest contribution to their fourth decade of DIY homesteading. The 2009-2015 collection assembles their correspondence and what they've picked up over the last six years, lovingly crafted on manual typewriters from a remote Oregon outpost. The tips and tricks presented here are practical and useful—pertaining to things like biking, permanent camping, alternative communities, DIY healthcare, disaster preparation, eating off the land, and MacGyver-like skills to prepare you for any and all situations. Whether you're planning to step off the grid or just simplify your life a little, Dwelling Portably has something for just about everyone.

Through hundreds of exclusive and original interviews, Punk USA documents an empire that was built overnight as Lookout sold millions of records, birthed a teenaged Green Day, and rode the wave of the second coming of punk rock until it all came crashing down. In 1987, Lawrence Livermore founded independent punk label Lookout Records to release records by his band The Lookouts. Forming a partnership with David Hayes, the label released some of the most influential recordings from California's East Bay punk scene. Originally operating out of a bedroom, Lookout created "The East Bay Punk sound," with bands such as Crimpshrine, Operation Ivy, The Mr. T Experience, and many more. The label helped to pave the way for future punk upstarts and as Lookout grew, young punk entrepreneurs used the label as a blueprint to try their hand at record pressing. As punk broke nationally in the mid 90s the label went from indie outfit to having more money than it knew how to manage.

Takes the reader inside Wildcat Academy, a second chance high school in New York City where all the students are considered at-risk. Through strong and revealing black and white images, the book tells the story of eight students who are trying to get that ticket to the middle class - a high school diploma. Whether they succeed or not has as much to do with what happens outside the classroom as in, and the value of perseverance is matched by the power of a second chance. It is a story that shows these teens in all their beauty, intelligence, suffering, humor, and humanity (and also when they are really pains in the behind.) A view from the trenches of public education, it challenges preconceptions about who these kids are, and what is needed to help them graduate.
